

13th Environmental Politics & Governance Conference

Hosted by the London School of Economics and Political Science and King's College London
London, United Kingdom | 15–18 June 2027

Call for proposals

The Environmental Politics & Governance (EPG) network invites proposals for papers at its 13th annual conference in London, United Kingdom. The conference showcases the world's best emerging research on environmental politics and governance, offers authors valuable feedback on work in progress, fosters an international community of environmental politics researchers, and seeks to shape the future of the field. The 13th conference builds upon the success of previous EPG conferences held in Seattle (2015), Zurich (2016), Bloomington (2017), Stockholm (2018), Santa Barbara (2019), Oslo (2020/2021), Penn State (2022), Glasgow (2023), Quebec City (2024), Sachseln (2025), and Madison (2026).

The 2027 EPG conference seeks papers that offer significant theoretical and/or empirical insights on all domains of environmental politics and governance. EPG welcomes studies that employ any combination of rigorous quantitative, qualitative, or other innovative research designs, including comparative, historical, interpretive, and computational approaches. We particularly encourage submissions from scholars based in the Global South and from those who have not attended EPG before.

Format

The conference will feature a single track of panels and poster sessions, with lively discussion of each paper. Participants read and comment on other participants' papers in advance of the meeting, and all participants take part in every session. It is not possible to participate remotely.

The conference is also intensely social, offering ample time for casual conversation. Participants take all meals together, and evenings feature dinners and social events in central London. The conference opens on Tuesday evening with a public roundtable at LSE, followed by a welcome reception and dinner.

Submission process

Paper proposals should be submitted through the online form at <https://forms.gle/g9k8ujxvnbsNn3qf6> and provide the following information:

1. Author names, affiliations, career stages, and contact information, including the name of the presenting author;
2. Information on authors' participation in past EPG conferences;
3. An anonymised PDF file with a paper title and a detailed abstract of no more than 1,000 words that outlines the work's research question, theory, data, and methods, along with its contributions to the field of environmental politics and governance. The abstract may include one table or figure. Please remove author names, acknowledgements, and self-identifying references from the PDF, including from its file properties. The form links to a page where you can upload the PDF without a Dropbox account;

4. Optionally, a request for accommodation support (see Logistics below).

We will consider works in progress only; please do not submit published, forthcoming, or accepted work. Authors of an accepted proposal are expected to share the full paper with conference participants two weeks before the conference.

All submissions, including those by EPG steering group members and by colleagues at the host institutions, will undergo double-blind review. The conference organisers will rely on these reviews when setting the final programme.

Logistics

There is no conference registration fee. LSE and King's College London will provide all meals during the conference. Participants are responsible for their own travel to London and their own accommodation. We have limited funds to support accommodation for early career researchers who would otherwise be unable to attend; if this applies to you, please say so on the submission form. Support requests are not shared with reviewers and do not affect the review of your proposal. Participants who can do so are asked to cover their own costs so that these funds can be directed to those without access to research or travel funding.

Both host institutions are in central London, within walking distance of each other. London is served by Heathrow (LHR) and Gatwick (LGW) airports, among others, with direct rail links to the city centre. Participants travelling from continental Europe may prefer Eurostar, which arrives at London St Pancras International; in keeping with the subject of the conference, we encourage low-carbon travel where practical.

International participants should check early whether they need a UK visa. Many visitors who do not need a visa, including most European and North American nationals, now need an Electronic Travel Authorisation (ETA) before travelling. We will provide formal invitation letters for visa applications on request once proposals are accepted.

Participants should plan to arrive by the afternoon of Tuesday 15 June 2027 and depart after lunch on Friday 18 June 2027. All participants are expected to attend the full conference, including meals and evening events, contributing to discussions and building a community of scholars.

Timeline

Proposal submission deadline	Sunday 15 November 2026 (23:59 UK time)
Notification of decisions	By Friday 18 December 2026
Deadline to accept invitation	Sunday 31 January 2027
Deadline to share full papers	Tuesday 1 June 2027
13th EPG Conference	Tuesday 15 – Friday 18 June 2027

Conference hosts

The 13th EPG Conference is hosted by the London School of Economics and Political Science, with support from the LSE Global School of Sustainability, the Sustainable Social Policy and Welfare States Research Hub in the Department of Social Policy, and the Department of Government, together with King's College London Department of Political Economy. Please contact the organisers, Liam Beiser-McGrath (LSE), Michael Lerner (LSE), and Francesca Vantaggiato (King's College London), at epg2027@googlegroups.com with any questions.